NEW ENTRANCE/LOBBY

NEW ENTRANCE/LOBBY

Renowned architect, and building tenant, Morris Adjmi has brought his signature style and flair to mark a new era for 60 Broad.

A curated selection of contemporary art inspired by Manhattan’s iconic mid-century commercial buildings, and highlighted by a Cody Hudson abstract mural set a welcoming tone. Energy-efficient lighting, rounded columns and wood paneling along the outer edges complement the overall lobby aesthetic.

An inviting new entry, modernized elevator cabs and new amenity space complete the building revitalization.

FLEXIBILITY AT THE TOP

Boutique tenants rarely find the privacy and prestige offered by the full tower floors of 60 Broad Street. In an era when employee attraction and retention are key to corporate success, the power and presence of these floors provide a significant workplace advantage.

Efficient, side core configuration easily accommodates traditional and contemporary office design.

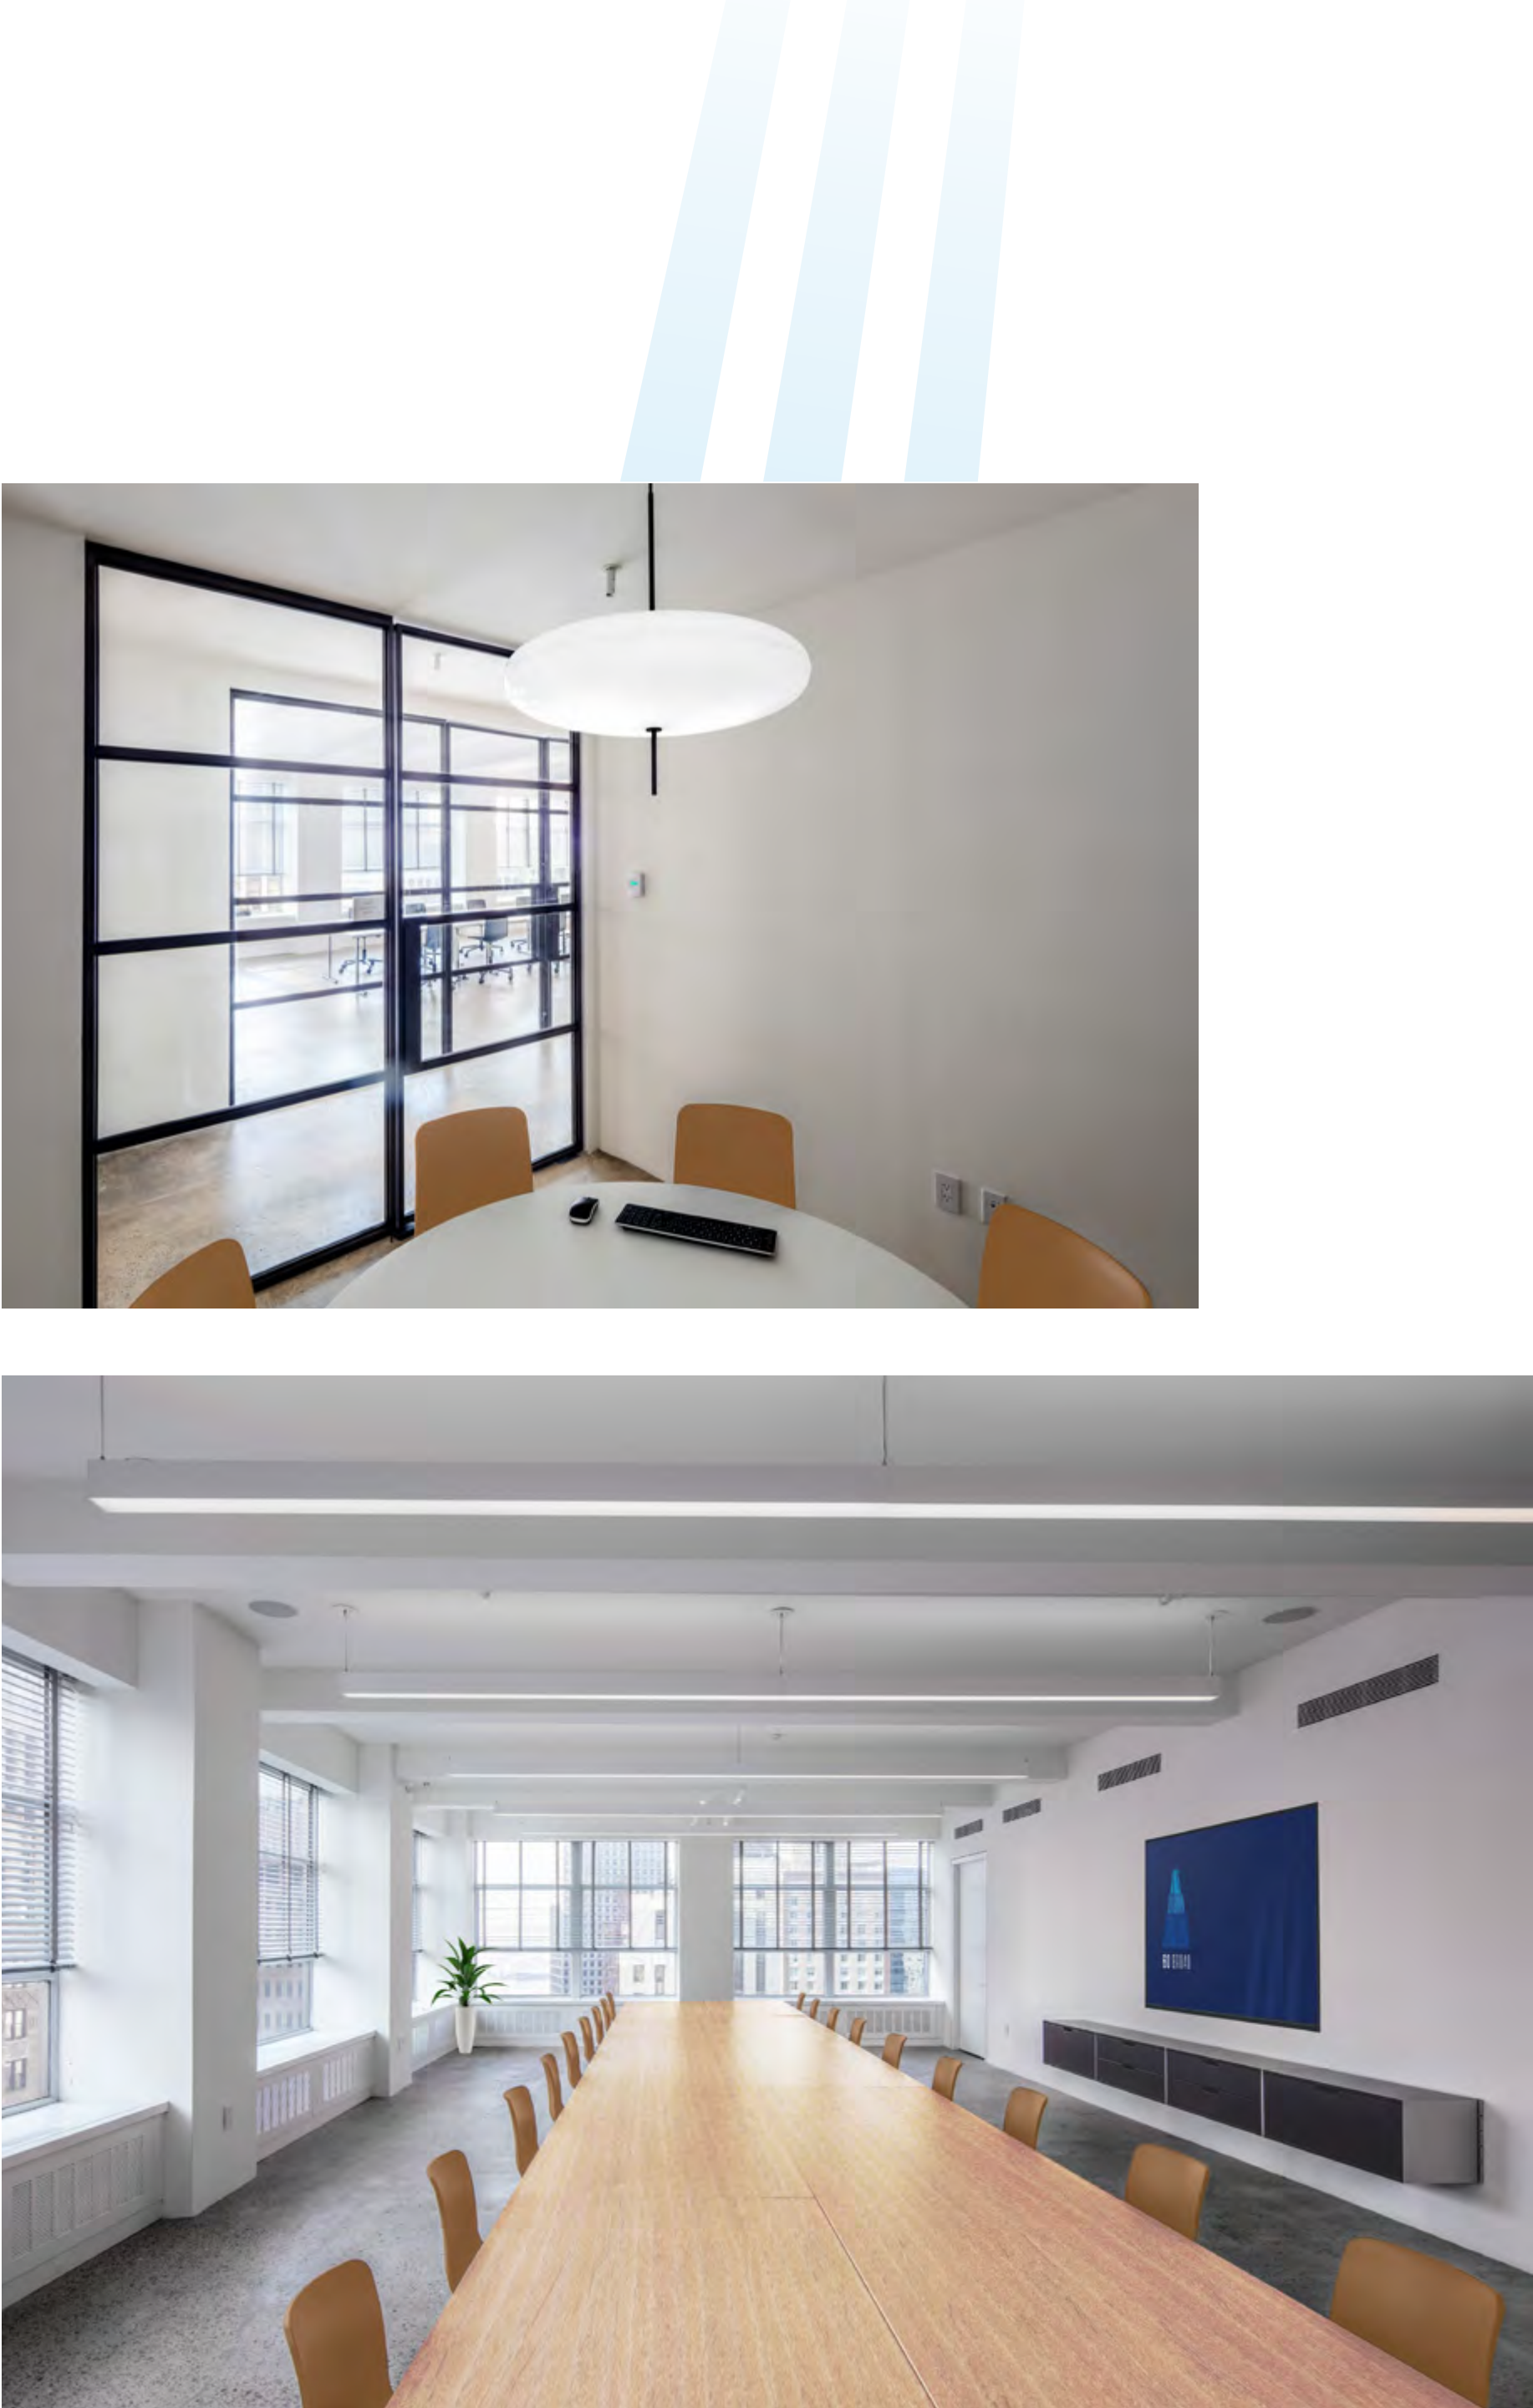

Tower floors are filled with light and air.

Each floor offers inspirational views of New York Harbor and the multifaceted textures of Downtown.

Reception areas, conference rooms and breakout areas are filled with light, air and views.

A diverse tenant roster from financial services to creative tenants attests to the attractiveness of 60 Broad.

An in-building co-working provider supports scalability for boutique tenants.

A wide-angle, nighttime photograph taken from a high vantage point, likely a skyscraper, looking out over the New York City harbor. The sky is a deep blue with scattered white clouds. In the foreground on the right, a portion of the building's facade is visible, featuring a tall, dark, pointed architectural element and a balcony with ornate stone balustrades. The harbor below is dark blue, with several boats visible, including a large ferry in the center. In the middle ground, the Statue of Liberty stands on her island, illuminated. The background shows the city skyline with numerous lights, including the Manhattan Bridge and various industrial structures along the waterfront.

Whether admiring Lady Liberty in the harbor or gazing at the City's twinkling lights, stunning views offer daily inspiration.

DOWNTOWN CENTRAL

Equidistant to two of Downtown's most coveted outdoor recreation areas – the South Street Seaport and Battery Park City – 60 Broad is central to the best of the neighborhood. With two major transit hubs – the Fulton Transit Center and the World Trade Center – every subway as well as PATH is within a five-minute walk. Dining runs the gamut from casual to Michelin stars and the neighborhood abounds with after work options from the lively gathering spots on Stone Street to the Hudson River-adjacent vitality of Brookfield Place. Employees will especially enjoy a midday break at either Bowling Green Park or along the East River Esplanade, both within a few minutes' walk.
