HELL'S KITCHEN

The Plant Building offers distinctive Midtown office space with an attended lobby, renovated common areas, and convenient access to major transportation. Just blocks from the Port Authority Bus Terminal and Times Square, the property is well positioned for commuters traveling throughout Manhattan and the greater New York metropolitan area. Its Theater District location provides easy access to a wide range of restaurants, hotels, entertainment, and everyday amenities.

The building is one of New York City's most storied music addresses. From 1968 to 1987, it was home to the legendary Record Plant recording studio, where artists including John Lennon, Jimi Hendrix, Bruce Springsteen, Aerosmith, and Billy Joel recorded some of their most memorable work.

Tenants enjoy access to a shared rooftop and a conference room located within John Lennon's former recording studio, along with two private restrooms.
