SoHo area overview

SoHo has long been one of the City's preeminent retail districts and most sought-after neighborhoods distinct for its cast-iron facades, cobblestone streets, art galleries, world-class retail, 5-star hotels, boutique offices and luxurious residences.

SoHo's culinary scene includes some of the world's top restaurants, among them, Raoul's, Omen Azen, Blue Ribbon Sushi, Estela, Le Coucou, Lure Fishbar, Balthazar, Lucky's Steakhouse, and many more. This concentration of fine dining is a testament to the area's appeal, further rendering SoHo a premier, high-end residential neighborhood.

The neighborhood is home to an eclectic mix of flagship stores along the main avenues and high-end independent boutiques along the side streets. The SoHo office market seamlessly blends historic charm with modern amenities, attracting creative industries, tech companies, and boutique firms. High demand for office space is driven by excellent transportation, diverse retail and dining options, and a lively atmosphere. Many buildings have been updated to preserve their historic architecture while meeting contemporary business needs, making SoHo an appealing and dynamic location for businesses.
